

CS Decoded: An Integrated Approach

Information/Application for participation in 2018-19 school year

Tulare County Office of Education is partnering with Google for Education to bring a cohort of 70 educators from across California’s Central Valley together to learn and collaborate to design computer science (CS) standards-based, interdisciplinary learning experiences for grades 6-8 in alignment with CA CCSS for Mathematics/NGSS. Educators, coaches, and administrators are welcome to apply to participate in the cohort. Prior CS experience is not required. There are 35 spots available for educators on the science integration track, and 35 spots available for educators on the mathematics integration track. The program is offered free of charge, thanks to a grant opportunity from Google for Education. While priority will be given to educators within Tulare County, educators from across the Central Valley are welcome to apply. For more details about the grant program please visit <http://commoncore.tcoe.org/edtech/CSDecoded>

Please ensure you will be able to attend the following dates in accordance to the track to which you apply.
